

Room on the Roof, Chakrata

Camp Room on the Roof, true to its name is set on step farms at the valleys in Viraatkhai. 25 kms from Chakrata, it's an ideal locale for wilderness, away from the buzz of busy life. One is actually peeking over the regular landscapes from an altitude of 1900m. Nothing keeps one away from the magnificent view of the Himalayas and actually considering the thought that all the visible stretches of mountains belong to him. The camp is home to all nature lovers who want to communicate beyond the idea of exotic nature on television and books; a home away from home where each neighbour is replaced by conifers, oaks and rhododendrons. Each automobile is replaced by colourful migratory birds. Each speck of dust is replaced by the droplets of moisture, oozing out from plush green flora. All you hear is bird calls and a river rushing somewhere down in the valley, until your friend's gentle tap on your shoulders, bring you back to the earth. It's only too wonderful to get lost.

Barely 45 km from the camp, one finds himself at the mouth of a 50m high waterfall, popularly known as Tiger Falls. The treacherously fast water comes to a sudden stand, into a shallow pool of water, slowly draining itself into the surrounding beauty. Lost in nature and loaded with GIO activities, the stay becomes even more enchanting. When one visions being at place and GIO helps him reach, or suspended in mid air experiencing an entirely new perspective, are all that our camp stands for. The room on the roof is truly a tribute to the undiscovered Indian Outdoors, a point that will take years to find itself on the maps.
